Abie's Irish Rose to be Produced August 23-24-25 by Little Theatre

The Bay St. Louis Little Theatre has chosen August 23-24-25 as the dates for its fourth production, "Abie's Irish Rose" by Ann Nichols. This is a delightful play and one which you can bring the whole family to see. It is the type of play that so many have requested and will furnish excellent entertainment.

One rarely finds a dramatic vehicle in which father and daughter are cast simultaneously, but such is the case in "Abie's Irish Rose." Mary Lynn Raymond, who plays the female lead, and her father Lucian Raymond, who does a character part in a very finished manner are both members of the cast. Others are Walker Spangenberg, Johann Craft, Joseph Huber, Philip Allison, J. J. Kelleher, Joe Viguerie of New Orleans. All are exerting every effort to make the play another hit. The production is splendidly cast and has as its director Philip Allison with fun.

Walker Spangenberg as assistant. Light and sound effects are in the capable hands of C. E. Schaffer, who did such an excellent job in the same capacity in the recent hit, "Rain." Mr. Schaffer is a natural aptitude for timing, which is such a specific factor in good execution.

No one will want to miss this splendid production, which ranks as one of the most successful plays ever to have been written. The complications which follow the marriage of a sweet but typically Irish lass to an equally attractive Jewish boy are hilarious and at the same time very touching. The outcome is an interesting one and climaxes one of the most intriguing yarns ever told.

Admission will be $1 plus tax at the theatre or the fourth on the yearly series card. Come out and bring the whole family for an evening of wholesome fun.

MRS. BEN HILLE TO HEAD LIBRARY TAG DAY DRIVE

Miss Louise A. Crawford, librarian, announces the date of the annual Tag Day and drive for the Bay St. Louis Hancock Library for Saturday, August 18. Mrs. Ben Hille has been named allover chairman of the drive.

The taggers will be on the streets early Saturday morning and will be stationed at all points that lend themselves to large groups of people. In the meantime cards have been mailed to friends and patrons of the library and if you have already made your contribution please let the taggers know this so that you will not be approached again.

It is hoped that all right thinking people will contribute to this cause because your library is an asset to your town. Your children are being benefited; your young people are having the proper type of reading; older people find it helpful for reference work and for lighter reading too; students find it a necessity during the school session. If its radius of helpfulness reaches this far you will realize what is your part in helping to keep the library in good books by contributing each year (once a year) to the book fund of the library.

One employed lady gives $1 of her salary each month to the library. Just think what could be done if 200 persons gave $1 a month. Cleta Kay and Paul M. Miller each drop a penny in a bank for each book they read. If 100 children did this a nice sum would be realized each Tag Day.

Tag Day: Saturday, August 18. If the taggers don't see you see them. If your card did not reach you call the library, phone 448, and offer your contribution.

VETERANS PROVE TO BE GOOD STUDENTS

The deadline for starting educational training under the GI Bill has passed but, since it began, seven years ago, 8,000,000 veterans have attended school or college under governmental subsidy at a cost to the nation of $14,000,000,000.

The Education Bill, which was adopted in 1944, when millions of Americans were involved in fighting for the defense of their country, was designed to provide financial assistance for veterans who decided to go to school or college upon returning to civilian status. The original law was amended a number of times to liberalize its provisions. Depending upon length of service, the veterans were given up to four years of free schooling with the government paying the expense of their education.

It should be remembered by Americans at this time that when the bill was passed, it was feared that there would be another repetition of the apple-selling veteran on the streets of our cities. The prospect at that time was that, when the war ended, peace-time industry could not assimilate the released labor force and, consequently, something should be done to encourage the veterans to improve their educational status. Much the same thought was behind the unemployment compensation payments plan.

While there have been some abuses of the privileges extended to the veterans, both on the part of the veterans and on the part of some institutions of learning, the main result of the program has been excellent. The minor inefficiency and the fact that some of the veterans have not applied themselves to learning as much as to drawing the subsistence allotment, do not change the fact that, in the main, the veterans behaved themselves in a manner to justify the government's expense.

From many college campuses have come favorable comments on the industry and behavior of the GI students. In fact, the men went back to school with the serious intention of taking advantage of their opportunity. Their behavior and scholarship compared favorably with that of regular students in our colleges and universities.

The deadline of July 25th applied to most of the veterans of World War II—those discharged before July 25, 1947. Veterans discharged after that date could begin their training within four years of the time they left the service. The probability is that a similar provision will be made in behalf of the veterans of the fighting in Korea.

At the peak of the program, in 1947, more than one million veterans were on the campuses of the nation, getting free tuition and subsistence grants. At this time, close to 500,000 service men are still at work in colleges and universities, although the number is dwindling very rapidly.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER

By
W. F. BOND, COMMISSIONER
State Dept. Public Welfare

The Legislature appropriated money to the Department of Public Welfare for training and employment of blind citizens, as we have mentioned in previous letters. This Industries for the Blind and Training Center is ably managed by N. B. Price from Crystal Springs.

Contracts worth $1,000,000 for war work has been received since the Korean War started. These workers make one-half million mailing bags and 75,000 pillow cases per month for the armed forces. They make 3,600 dozen brooms per month, half of which are sold to the armed forces and half of this and 1200 dozen mops per month are sold to the retail stores in the state.

Blind workers earned $24,000 in the year ending June 30. All workers are paid by the piece, thus earning all they receive. We are accepting from the government an order of from 20 to 40 thousand surgical wraps and surgical drapes per month which will be an added skill to teach to workers. A happier more contented group of workers one would go far to find. This splendid training and work center for the blind has been made possible through the generosity of the Mississippi Legislature.

MISSISSIPPI OIL MEN HAVE TO DIG DEEPER

In spite of the fact that the average depth of Mississippi oil and gas wells drilled in the first six months of 1951 almost doubled the national average of 3,864 feet, the industry completed 149 wells in the state during that period. These facts are taken from the midyear report of the Oil and Gas Journal and are accepted by the industry as being authoritative. Of the 149 completed in Mississippi, including both wildcats and field wells, 64 produced oil, 6 produced gas and 79 were dry holes. The Journal forecasts that for the last six months of 1951, Mississippi will have 82 wildcats drilled and 106 field wells for a total of 188. Total footage for these wells is 1,350,000.

Another 200 Rural Bell Telephones for Jackson County

ABOVE: W. Grady Mizelle making first long distance call to J. G. Bradbury, Atlanta, Ga. Operating V-P of Southern Bell. Edw. A. Khayat, M. C. looks on.

HURLEY—More than 700 attended the big celebration and banquet here marking the inauguration by the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company of rural dial telephone service for the portion of Jackson County east of the Pascagoula River and north of Escatawpa.

The dedication ceremonies which were held on the lawn of the Hurley Consolidated High School were sponsored by a committee of Jackson County citizens. Master of Ceremonies was Pascagoula-Moss Point banker, Edward A. Khayat. J. W. Walley of the Hurley Methodist Church gave the invocation; the welcome address was by G. M. Hamilton, Hurley merchant and Mayor Alton Thompson, of Moss Point responded.

Other speakers, in addition to Mr. Harris, were A. P. Moran, President of Jackson County Board of Supervisors; L. E. Slawson, Rural Development Supervisor for Southern Bell; Mr. Abbott Harris, Line Superintendent, represented J. T. Dudley, Lucedale, Manager of Singing River Electric Power Association; and Thomas R. Wells, Superintendent Pascagoula City Schools.

The First Calls
K. W. Roberts of Hurley threw the switch placing the new rural telephone facilities in service; Mrs. M. C. Crawford, also of Hurley, placed the first local call over the new facilities and the first long distance call was placed by W. Grady Mizelle, Hurley contractor, who talked with J. G. Bradbury, Southern Bell Operating Vice-President in Atlanta, Ga.

Music for the occasion was furnished by the Pascagoula High School Band, and the entire program was broadcast by Radio Station WVMJ, Biloxi.

The dial switching unit placed in service here, in connection with this 100 thousand dollar project, will provide service for approximately 100 rural customers. Another 100 rural telephones on the east side of the Pascagoula River in Jackson County are connected to the Moss Point Exchange. The unit is similar to the unit placed in service at Van Cleave last September as part of a 150 thousand dollar rural telephone project to serve the western part of Jackson County.

Communities To Be Served

Included in the areas to be served by the new dial switching unit at Hurley and through the Moss Point Exchange, of which the unit is a part, are the communities of Helena, Wilson Springs, Big Point, Hurley, Harleston, Wade, and Three Rivers.

All of these new telephones, it is pointed out by Southern Bell officials, are considered a part of the Moss Point exchange and the monthly rate paid by the subscribers for their telephone service en-dues them to an unlimited number of calls to any other local telephone connected to the exchange at Moss Point or Pascagoula.

Typical Rural Project

T. E. Harris, Mississippi Manager for Southern Bell, told the crowd here that the Hurley project is typical of many rural projects already completed or under way in Mississippi. He pointed out that in addition to placing a great number of poles, telephone facilities were placed on several hundred poles of the Singing River Electric Power Association by a joint-venture agreement.

"Our rural expansion program in Mississippi has cost us 8 1/2 million dollars in the last 5 years," Mr. Harris stated. "While for extensions and replacements of all kinds in the state, we have spent more than 50 million dollars! We are eager to continue to provide rural Mississippians with the telephone service they need and desire," Mr. Harris concluded, "but this requires vast sums of new capital which we must obtain from investors in exchange for telephone company stock. To attract these investors and so secure the capital needed for extending our facilities we must keep our earnings at a satisfactory level which can be done only when we are able to secure reasonable and adequate rates for telephone service."

VOTING INCREASES 9% IN 1951 OVER 1947

The League of Women Voters of Bay St. Louis announces that there were approximately 4,800 votes cast in the primary election held August 8 out of a possible 5,500. While this is not as large a number of votes as the League would like to see cast, it is an increase of 350 or approximately 9 percent over those cast in the last county-wide primary election.

This is the main objective of the League—to promote active, intelligent participation in government, and to bring the widest possible participation in their duty of voting is the first step in obtaining this objective.

In order to hold this increase in votes cast, the League wishes to remind all voters to be at the polls on August 28 to cast their votes in the second primary and to have with them their poll tax receipts for 1949 and 1950.

Those voters who cannot and will be away at the polls the polls are open will need an absentee ballot. These may be obtained from the office of the Clerk of Courts. Anyone who voted an absentee ballot August 8 and who is still out of state will need to file a second application for a ballot. If you know of anyone who needs to do this, will you please obtain an application from the Clerk of Courts and mail it to them so that they may vote in this second primary.

The managers at the polls have asked that those people who can, please come

FHA Farm Tenancy Funds Available for Fiscal 1952

Mr. T. B. Patterson, State Director of the Farmers Home Administration, has announced that direct loan funds, in the amount of $1,035,109 have been allocated to the State of Mississippi for making Farm Ownership loans during the 1952 fiscal year. Based upon the continuing resolution of the Congress, this allocation has been made on the basis of farm population and the prevalence of tenancy in the State, and these funds are available for making Tenant Purchase, Farm Enlargement and Farm Development loans. As in the past, veterans will continue to receive preference.

The services of the Farmers Home Administration are available through the County Offices, which are usually located in the county seats of the various counties in the state. At the local county office, applicants may obtain information on eligibility requirements for these loans. All applications are reviewed for determination of eligibility by a local County Committee composed of three members, two of whom are farmers.

In the light of current real estate values, it is of interest to farmers to know that funds are available to qualified applicants for the purpose of enlarging or developing inefficient family-type farm units into efficient family-type farm units.

Special Announcement ED P. ORTTE

I wish at this time to make it very clear to the Voters of Beat 5, I am an INDEPENDENT CANDIDATE. HAVE ALWAYS BEEN AND ALWAYS WILL BE.

In the second primary I am running my campaign independently of all other candidates.

In a second primary there is always a misunderstanding among Candidates, as to who is supporting who. Some people and candidates will align a candidate with their choice. Others for the benefit of achieving votes will disclaim a candidate or a group's support in those words they will do whatever they feel will best benefit them.

I am supporting no particular candidate in the other primary, and of the other races I WILL VOTE FOR THE CANDIDATE I FEEL IS THE BEST QUALIFIED.

Thanks

ED P. ORTTE

Parents are reminded to register their child for the coming school year on August 31. Regular classes for the Waveland School are to begin Tuesday, Sept. 4.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rose and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Nash have begun their vacation together by motoring to Daytona Beach, St. Augustine and other points of interest in the state of Florida. They expect to be gone about five days. This vacation for the Roses will be in the way of a celebration on their ninth wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Newell Erwin and daughter, Miss Jean Pritchard, are enjoying a two weeks' vacation in Washington, D.C. They motored to the capital city with Mr. and Mrs. James McConnell, of Waveland. Mr. McConnell is attending a convention in Washington. Upon their return to Waveland, Jena plans to spend about two weeks with her mother before assuming her new job as a nurse at Toussaint Infirmary in New Orleans.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Calonge, of Winfield, Louisiana, have purchased an attractive cottage on Aiken Road and plan to make it their permanent home.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Munson and family of Albania Plantation in Jeanerette, Louisiana, are spending their vacation in the Boudreaux home on Beach Boulevard.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Terrell will have their new son christened Sunday at St. Claire's Church on Beach Boulevard. The infant who has been in the incubator at King's Daughters Hospital is now tipping the scales at five pounds.

Master J. D. Bourgeois, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Ducre Bourgeois, celebrated his eight birthday Sunday, Aug. 12, at the home of his parents on Market Street. Between fifteen and twenty young folks helped J. D. celebrate this big event. The children played games and enjoyed peanut butter sandwiches, Hi-Ho crackers, candy, potato chips, coke and punch. Everyone was most enthusiastic about the party.

Mrs. C. M. Torgerson and Mrs. Bob Torgerson spent Tuesday in New Orleans.

Mrs. Ducre Bourgeois spent Monday and Tuesday in New Orleans. She was accompanied by her husband, J. D. Bourgeois, and their son.

All of the money made by Mrs. Dan Chabrier's sale of her home is being used to help the poor.

Congratulations are in order for Miss Gerry Fenead, a talented dancing teacher who has been conducting her dancing school at Bay St. Louis for the past two years. One of Miss Fenead's pupils, a twelve year old Jacquelyn Fenead, of New Orleans, recently won first prize honors in the Haddcock contest. Jacquelyn was one of two hundred contestants who entered. The group was divided into 100, then 30, then 10, and then to One. This lucky one was the talented Ebeier, Miss Jacquelyn and her mother leaves shortly for Hollywood where the youngster make a screen test and enjoy two weeks as guests of Haddcock. All expenses will be paid and the girl will have the choice of travel—plane, train or bus. Jacquelyn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Ebeier, 2035 Bruxelles Street, New Orleans.

Gulf's Laurel Core Lab Constantly Checks Production Progress

Scenes from Gulf's Laurel Core Laboratory, shown above: (1) Miss Willodean McDonnell conducting saturation test. (2) Dan Rowe runs a porosity test. (3) Laboratory Director John B. Tomlinson holds one core with others on desk. (4) Preparing core for tests using diamond drill. (5) Partial view of lab interior. (6) Julian Morgan checking permeability.

Despite the scientific calm of the Gulf Refining Company's core laboratory at Laurel, Mississippi, there is a continuous undercurrent of excitement.

A few short years ago the core laboratory was an embryo. Work was started on the first core laboratory under the guidance of Dr. G. E. Manger in January of 1945. It was initially housed in a converted garage. As its services became of ever greater importance it was expanded and moved into the basement of the Gulf Building in Laurel. Later it was decided to design and build a structure to adequately house the laboratory, and shortly after January of 1947 it was greatly enlarged in facilities and personnel and moved into its present location, where today it is in daily operation. And in emergencies the lights burn far into the night as well. John B. Tomlinson, Laboratory Director, has been with Gulf Refining ever since his graduation from Penn. State and the laboratory work is conducted under his trained and experienced eyes.

Gulf Refining in Mississippi To Stay

The Laurel laboratory is further proof of the painstaking care and industrial and scientific know-how that Gulf Refining brings to the task of developing the oil industry of Mississippi, an industry that is today contributing millions of dollars to the state's economy with even brighter promises for the future.

Stripped insofar as is possible of technical terminology, this is a brief description of what the core laboratory does and why it is necessary and important. In a neighboring building the geological department sets up a time drilling schedule for every well that is being drilled as well as a permeability schedule. If the well is in a proven territory the schedule is based upon what is known about that specific field. If it is a wildcat in an unproven area, the schedules are based on what the geological department believes to be under the surface as determined by geological surveys and other scientific methods. At best these schedules are scientific guesses, for no scientist has ever succeeded in taking the gamble out of oil exploration and probably no one ever will.

Turning the Hole Inside Out As the drills penetrate further and further beneath the surface, a core point is reached and the drilling crew takes time out to cut a core. That core is a sample of the formation at a given point and if it is a wire line core it is about ten feet long and about one and one-half inches in diameter. Essential parts of the core are sent to the laboratory and it is the job of the laboratory specialists to check the formation at that given point and report their findings to the other departments.

Laboratory Conducts Three Basic Tests

When the core reaches the laboratory it is prepared for three basic tests. It is necessary to measure its porosity, permeability, and to run a saturation test. The aggregate of these findings serves as a guide for further development as well as a check on the schedules that have been set up as probabilities.

One of the three checks is porosity. This is a measure of the free space existing in a sand formation or in porous rock. Porosity is expressed in percentages and shows the capacity of a given formation to contain fluids or gas. In other words, a sample with 15% porosity indicates that one-quarter of a given volume of sand or porous rock can contain liquid or gas. Another check is permeability. This is a measure of the ease with which a liquid could pass through sand or porous rock. As Director Tomlinson explained it, imagine we have two bushel baskets, one filled with grapefruit, the other with lemons. The grapefruit filled basket would have greater permeability than the lemon filled basket and obviously liquids would pass through the grapefruit with greater ease. So it is with sands containing sand grains of different sizes. Permeability is of great importance, as it indicates the ease with which the hoped-for oil might be recovered from an actual formation.

More Scientific Guesses

The third check is saturation, and this check is easier for the lay mind to understand in that it is merely finding out what liquids exist in the cores and in what quantities. But, and it's a big but, there is a catch to this seemingly simple measure. You see, the particular core sample may have been taken at a point thousands of feet down in the earth where tremendous pressures are found, pressures that run to thousands of pounds per square inch. Then the core sample is brought up into atmospheric pressure of just under 15 pounds per square inch. These changes in pressure plus the flushing action of the drilling mud mean the escape or loss of certain liquids and now the technicians in predicting probable production have to also enter the field of speculative diagnostics as they have to, as accurately as their knowledge permits, estimate what fluids escaped and in what quantities.

The Gulf Refining Company's core laboratory at Laurel is another step forward in bringing to oil exploration the fact-finding equipment available to the scientist, and is further tangible evidence of Gulf's belief in the future of the oil industry in Mississippi.

R. G. HUBBARD

Leading Candidate of Supervisor Race

I assure the voters again that I am strictly an INDEPENDENT candidate and am quite confident that the public believes this to be true because of the wonderful vote they gave me in the first primary.

The figures of the 1947 and 1951 first primaries are as follows:

1947 votes: Hubbard 369	Ortte 1097
1951 votes: Hubbard 649	Ortte 593

Hubbard increase 280 Ortte decrease 504

These figures show that since the first primary of the 1947 election, my opponent has lost popularity, whereas I am steadily gaining.

This trend in the voting indicates that the people definitely want a change in the office of Supervisor, Beat 5.

Since the people made me the leading candidate in the first primary, I sincerely solicit their vote and support in the Second.

R. G. (MANNY) HUBBARD

Oil and Gas Boom in Mississippi Encouragement Given Industry

Mississippi's encouragement of industrial expansion in the oil and gas industry has been a major factor in the state's economic growth since 1945, according to a report by the Mississippi Academy of Sciences.

Addressing a meeting of the Mississippi Academy of Sciences, Mr. Wright stated that since 1945, when oil was discovered in the Vicksburg county, the industry has expanded until today there are over 1800 producing oil and gas wells in the state.

"This amazing growth has not been just a happenstance," he said, "several factors have been responsible."

"Because of our nation's need for oil and gas, the industry must continually be on the lookout for new sources of supply. New fields and reserves must be discovered to make sure that in both peace and war we'll never be caught short."

"However, if Mississippi had not offered encouragement to the industry a large part of this expansion might have taken place elsewhere. Oil and gas companies are like all other industrial organizations; they go where conditions are most favorable for their growth."

POLIO STRIKES AT SIX CHILDREN IN FAMILY

Los Angeles—Dread polio has laid low six of the eight children in the family of brick worker Donald E. De Mars.

All six of the youngsters are in Los Angeles General Hospital today. Two of them—three-year-old Richard and his oldest brother, Donald, 10—are in respirators.

The other stricken children are Davis, 10 months; Shirley, five years; Audrey, seven, and Patricia, 12.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis said it was the hardest swipe the disease has taken at a single family since 1946 when nine persons in a Minnesota family were stricken. Five children out of five were hit in Reno early this year.

The foundation has offered to pay the full cost of treatment for the De Mars children. The Mars brought his family to Los Angeles from Watertown, SD, six months ago.

The first victim was Richard, one of twins, who entered the hospital nine days ago. The two who have not become sick are Robert, three, the other twin, and Carol, 11.

Twelve children have died of polio this year in Los Angeles.

Although she was christened Cecilia Victoria Augusta Zita Theres Adelheid Hohenzollern, Princess Cecilia, granddaughter of the former Kaiser Wilhelm, now lives in Texas. There she is known as plain Mrs. Harris.
One remembers what a stir took place when the Princess came over to the attractive interior decorator, Clyde Harris of Amarillo, Texas. This took place last year.
Clyde Harris, a former captain in the U.S. Army, who served during the second world war, was assigned to track down "lost" works of art and that is when he met the former princess. The meeting took place in Scholt Wolfsgarten bei Englebach in 1945, shortly after VE Day. The princess supplied information which led to the discovery of the Hesse jewel robbery. Although Captain Harris' part in the discovery has never been publicized, his testimony is said to be somewhere in the War Department records.
The princess was intrigued by stories of Texas. After the captain left Germany and was subsequently discharged from the Army. The two corresponded. Their engagement was announced in June 1950. Nine days later they were married at Hohenzollern Castle.
Numbered among Cecilia's ancestors are emperors of Germany, reigning princesses, grand dukes, and margraves. Her father was the former Crown Prince Wilhelm, who died about a month ago.
The wedding brought the family together for the first time since the second world war.
Cecilia's brother, who donned overalls and worked as a mechanic in the Ford factories at Detroit between two world wars, has said of his brother-in-law, "We are very fond of Clyde. He is sincere, likable, and a genuine chap."
In October, 1950, Clyde and Cecilia returned to Amarillo to live—Clyde to resume his business as a decorator and Cecilia to take up the business of homemaking. Mrs. Harris takes an active interest in civic matters and willingly gives her assistance to any worthy cause. She is interested in politics and is a member of the League of Women Voters in Amarillo.
In Germany every Fraulein must be a "housewife" and must not go out through the night streets, alone. World peace that she was the granddaughter of Queen Victoria, still at England and when she was a new-ager, was one of the most talked about prospects of the Duke of Windsor.

Can you believe that Cornelia Otis Skinner is fifty-one? I find it very hard to accept since she looks so youthful and is so very active and alert. Not that 51 is inactive and dull, but her appearance just belies her years.
It is said that Cornelia still suffers from stage-fright after the many years she has been before the public and behind the footlights. She is a famed author (having collaborated with Emily Kimbrough on "Our Hearts Were Young in Gay"), a monologist and actress and can put on a whole evening's entertainment without once boring her audience. As she puts it: "I get more nervous about my performance every time I go on the stage. It gets worse as I get older," so amateurs need not be discouraged.
In Connecticut, under the Code of 1650, "idleness was an offense against the public."
The chapter on that subject, in the original spelling and punctuation reads as follows: "That no person, householder, or other, shall spend his time idly or unprofitably, under pains of such punishment, as the courts shall think meet to inflict, and for this end, it is ordered that the constable of every place, shall use special care and diligence, to take knowledge of offenders in this kind, especially of common coasters, unprofitable fowlers and tobacco takers, and present the same unto any magistrate, who shall have power to hear and determine the case."
Incidentally a "tobacco taker" was one who had not already accustomed himself to the use of it. Those who had were granted certificates which authorized them to continue using it.
I think it was a splendid idea to penalize idleness for there is no greater danger than an idle mind. When one has too little to occupy oneself mischief begins its subtle work and makes the idle-minded a tool, a literal enemy to oneself.
Perhaps the most concrete illustration of this is the writing of the anonymous letter. He who stoops to such a contemptible practice is an object of pity, whose exaggerated ego does not have enough natural outlet to re-

Sallis-Newport road will soon be taken over by the Mississippi Highway Commission, it has been announced by Highway Commissioner Sidney T. Roebuck. Brought up to minimum specifications of the highway department as the result of a $200,000 bond issue approved by Attala's Board of Supervisors, the important rural road was recently inspected by department engineers who agreed that the route would be acceptable when a new levee is graveled.

You save time when you call by number

You'll save yourself time, these busy days, by keeping a list of the numbers of the out-of-town telephone you frequently call.
When you call by number, the Long Distance operator doesn't have to consult information and your call goes through faster.
That means better service for you—and better service for all America. Right now when telephone lines are carrying urgent industrial and military calls.
P. S. E. News & Service Co. has a booklet for recording these out-of-town numbers. Write for it to the Business Office. Then let us tell you how to use it.

Ever Turn a Hole Inside Out?

Gulf does that, figuratively, with every well it drills in Mississippi. Probing deep in the earth with sensitive instruments, skilled scientists in Gulf's Mississippi laboratories can "read" the inside of a hole 5,000 feet below the surface almost as well as if the hole could be turned "inside out" and laid along the earth for all to see.
Even a dry hole yields information. Gulf has drilled 126 dry holes in Mississippi, each one costing $50,000 to $200,000. But from them Gulf scientists have obtained information which has proved useful in other drilling operations, sometimes many miles away.
But dry holes don't produce job opportunities and the advantages of good living for Mississippians. Gulf's $75,000,000 investment in the state and its 504 producing wells are doing that.
Confidence and faith in Mississippi and its future keeps the work going, as Gulf's Mississippi family of over 7,000 field and office workers, scientists, land and royalty owners and independent station operators and their employees join with other Mississippi citizens in enjoyment of a better, more prosperous life through development of Mississippi's natural resources.

A few words from Ed P. Ortte to people of District Five

I wish to again thank you for your splendid support in the first primary. Also I want to thank the seven independent gentlemen who were also candidates for Supervisor in the first primary for their support that they are giving me at this time.

I am a candidate free and independent of any ring, clique or clan. A convincing demonstration of the fact is that SEVEN OF THE EIGHT GENTLEMEN who ran for Supervisor in the first primary were INDEPENDENT AND FREE from ring influence. These gentlemen are now supporting me actively, and they, along with the people who consider the situation carefully, realize that I can not be dictated to or controlled by the MAYOR OF WAVELAND or those who dictate to him.

I ask the people to consider the near financial catastrophe of county government and high taxes when the county was controlled by organized politics in years gone by. I ask the people to think of the wonderful record we have made through the last three and a half years. I have done all in my power to be fair to all the people of my county and district. I have saved the tax payers bond issues and high taxes for beach and road repair; all work was untouched by ring control or influence.

My opponent is the same man who ran against me four years ago and is now supported by the same group who supported him then. No gang, or political group, as the people know, has been able to dictate to me.

A. C. Mitchell, clerk, Johnson Shaw and Frank Keller, Supervisors were re-elected in the first primary. In re-electing me in the second primary you will have given me a team back in office for another four years.

I have been a public and conscientious consideration of my record for the past four years. I believe you will find me to be a man of integrity. I sincerely believe you will find me to be a man of integrity. I will be forever grateful to you for the confidence you have placed in me.
